Look around you

…at the things in your space
…at the clothes you wear
…at the food you eat
…at the water you drink

Now try to count the human hands that have made you and your environment what they are.

Locally and globally we are all touched by the hands of workers through the products and services they provide. The health of these workers concerns us all.

According to the World Health Organization, almost 2/3 of the world’s workers are employed in unhealthy and unsafe working conditions. And the International Labour Organization reports that 160 million occupational diseases occur each year.

Workplace Health Without Borders is dedicated to ensuring healthy working conditions for workers everywhere.

A world where workers do not get sick because of their work

Imagined a world where everyone goes home at least as healthy as when they came to work...
Founded in 2011 by a group of occupational hygienists, WHWB is a non-profit international volunteer organization that addresses workplace health issues around the world. Our aim is to provide training, technical assistance and resources in areas that need more knowledge and capacity to manage and improve workplace health. We work in partnership with other local and international groups.

Our vision: A world where workers do not get sick because of their work.

Our mission: To engage the occupational health profession in ensuring that workers and employers throughout the world have the knowledge and means to prevent work-related disease.

Current and Recent Projects

- Partnering with the Occupational Hygiene Training Association (OHTA) on a silica training module
- Helping to develop an undergraduate Occupational Hygiene Program at Renaissance University, Nigeria
- Teaching an occupational hygiene course to physicians in India

Get involved!

Join WHWB and volunteer with one of our committees, like Communications, Membership, Fundraising or Projects. Help us to:

- Identify projects where occupational hygiene help is needed.
- Develop and maintain our website.
- Raise funds to support our work.
- Reach out to other organizations and partners.
- Develop educational materials and programs.
